

A large white quartz stone lies recumbant in the field to the east of Dôl-werdd. The large stone appears to have been moved from the position shown on the OS map. The surface of the stone is rough + irregular - as though it has been damaged. Some other small quartz stones were lying in the vicinity of the large stone but the pieces seemed to be naturally occurring and not pieces of debris.

See GP.

L. Weeks D.A.T.
3.6.1985