

By the gated entrance to the church is a slate step -

In the north wall of the church is a stone tablet recording Thomas Phillip who died in the early 1700s and his wife Esther who died in 1779. The earliest grave is by the south wall of the church and this is dated 1813. Some flat tombstones at the east end of the church are nearly illegible and should be recorded.

The church is in relatively good condition externally apart from some loose slates on the west end which need to be repaired. The interior was not visited as the church was locked.
