

A derelict drift mine with a large red brick mining building beside the road. See plan in DRF.

L. Weeks DAT
22.7.85

A rectangular pillar type structure (see sketch below) is situated 170m down the track

The purpose of this building is unknown to us, but if the spoil was removed from the base of the structure then features now obscured may suggest a use.

The stone was of various kinds. The western edge of the structure was badly cracked. It appears to have been capped with concrete as a safety precaution.

