Carew

Cross 3485

- The great cross of Margiteut at Carew so closely resembles that at
- Nevern, and the one now placed in Golden Grove garden, that we are
- led to the conclusion that all three were either carved by the
- same man, or at all events by disciples of the same school. The
- rendering of the inscription has varied greatly. Professor Rhys
- and Mr. Romilly Allen are now agreed that the correct reading is
- MARGITEUT RECETT F , i.e. "Meredith of Rheged made it" Arch. Camb.
- V, xii, 187. Oddly enough inscriptions very closely resembling
- this Carew legend have been found at Fethard and Bagibun in
- Ireland. See Academy, 13 October 1894. Arch. Camb. V, xii, 325.
- Journal of Brit. Arch. Ass. for 1885, p. 406. Arch. Camb. IV, x,
- 226; IV, xi, 340.
