Carew

Church

3492

The late Mr. Freeman considered it was extremely probable that Carew Church was the work of Bishop Gower. There are some good encaustic tiles described by Fenton; effigies of a knight in mail - an ecclesiastic; Sir John Carew and Dame Elizabeth his wife (1637); and a small figure said to represent "a boy bishop" are in the church. Outside, a building, which seems to have been a mortuary chapel, with a "bone hole" below. Fenton, 269. Arch. Camb. II, iii, 183; III, iii, 307; IV, xi, 340.
