St. Florence

Church

3539

A good Pembrokeshire church. It consists of a nave, chancel (with organ chamber) north and south transepts. Chancel and south transept are vaulted. In the chancel is an epitaph to Robert Rudd, the well-known Royalist Archdeacon. In the yard will be found the stump of a cross, on the base of which are some scratches that were once thought to be Ogam letters, but as there is no stem line, this can scarcely be. Fenton, 440. Arch. Camb. III, iv, 377, 379; IV, xi, 335; IV, xi, 335 (illustrated).
