

At Thorne (28), close to Merrion Camp, an abandoned farmhouse with a massive chimney, buttressed walls and an early form of doorway, is worth a look, though of 17th century date. This building is a robust example of the ancient Pembrokeshire tradition of vernacular architecture in what must have been its last phase.