Thank you for your consultation. I have checked the map boundaries against the regional Historic Environment Record (HER) and other sources and note the following historic environment features recorded within the consultation area;

Primary Reference Number (PRN) : 35715

Community : Y Ferwig

NGR : SN19195056

Summary :

Lying at the foot of an east-facing slope at approximately 120m, Ffynnoncyff is a cropmark defended enclosure with no earthworks or other surviving surface evidence. K Murphy 04.02.06

Description :

A strongly marked, ditched, sharp-cornered trapezoid crop-marked enclosure measuring internally approximately 50m north to south and 47m east to west, 0.23 ha in area. The ditch is between 4m and 5.5m wide. A 5.4m wide entrance lies in the centre of the east side. There are no internal features visible, but a slight ditch runs east from the south terminal ditch, and a second, similar ditch runs approximately east - west immediately adjacent and parallel to the southern side of the enclosure. This ditch continues into the field to the west. Both these ditches seem to belong to field systems contemporaneous with the enclosure. The enclosure ditch is clearly visible on the geophysical plot, together with traces of an internal bank around most of the circuit and traces of a counterscarp bank on most sides. The slighter ditch parallel to the south side of the enclosure is also clearly visible. A slight ditch running north from the northeast corner of the enclosure is also visible. No internal features are shown on the plot, possibly owing to the low resolution of the survey, but possibly also owing to absence of this intensively cultivated, shallow-soil site. K Murphy 2004.

Having assessed the application, the proposals for land-spreading of waste should not have a detrimental impact on this feature, which does not exhibit above-ground remains. However there may still be archaeological deposits surviving below ground, so ground intrusive activities should be avoided in this location.

There is always the possibility for previously unknown remains to survive within this area of which we have no knowledge. Should further archaeological features or finds be identified it is important that Dyfed Archaeological Trust Heritage Management is informed and further information and advice can then be provided as required.
