Thank you for your consultation. I have checked the map boundaries against the regional Historic Environment Record (HER) and other sources and note the following historic environment features recorded within the consultation area;

Primary Reference Number (PRN) : 105926

Community : Aberporth

NGR : SN2437048740

Site Type (preferred type first) : Modern Military Camp

Summary :

Aerial photographs from 1942 show a military camp in this location providing dispersed accommodation for personnel at RAF Aberporth (PRN 30594). At least six huts with other subsidiary buildings are dispersed evenly around the field.

The OS third edition (published 1953) identifies the site as 'Polish Resettlement Camp', this was established in 1946 until 1948 after the airfield's closure. See PRN 30595. When visited in 2013 there were no upstanding remains, but evidence of a concrete roadway at the field entrance. A Pyper 2013.

Primary Reference Numbers (PRN) : 30595

Community : Aberporth

NGR : SN244488

Site Type (preferred type first) : Modern Resettlement Camp

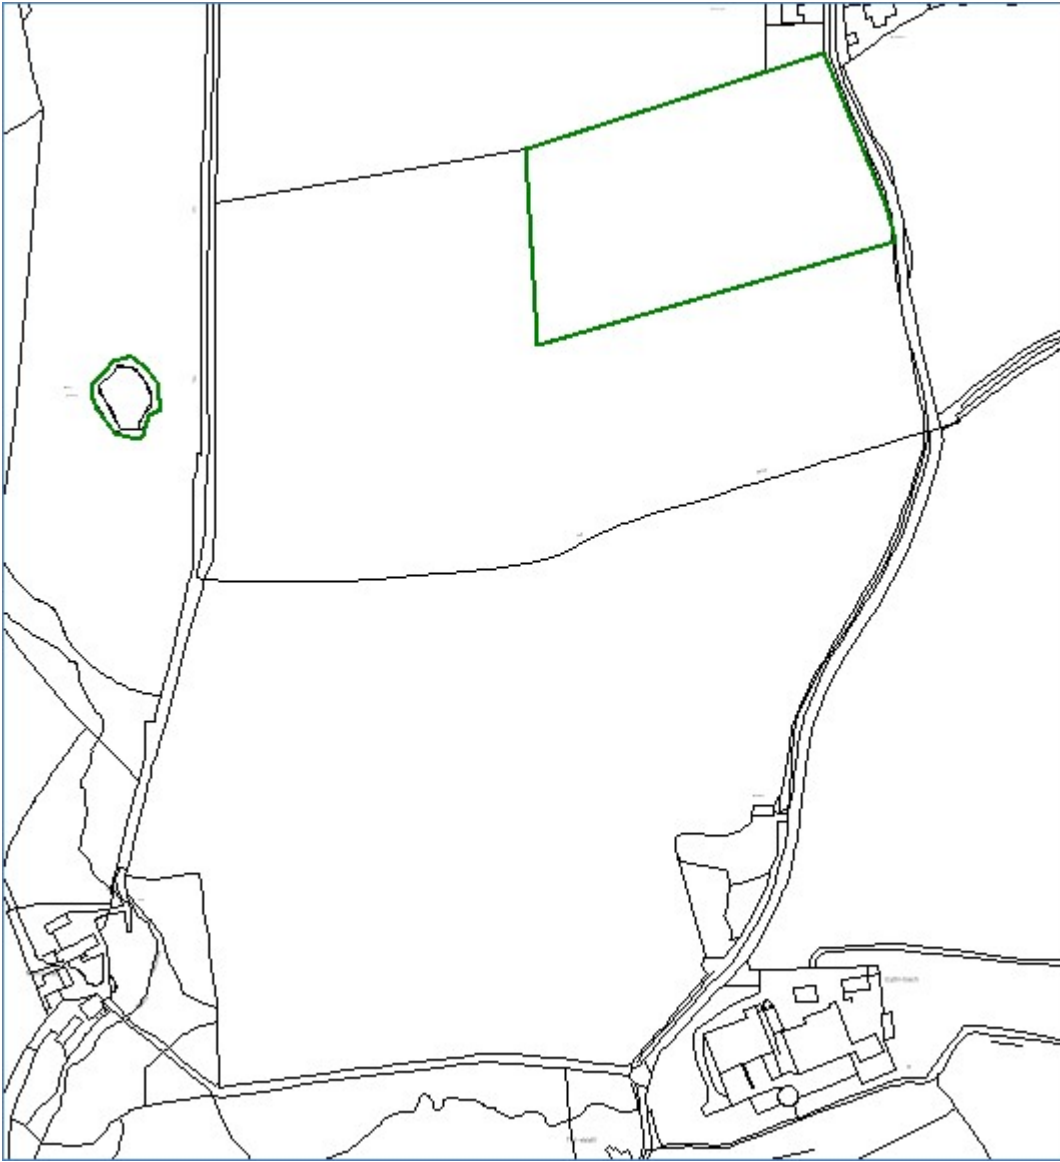

Summary :

A Polish Resettlement Camp is identified on the 6" OS map revised in 1948 and published in 1953, located on the site of the former airfield accommodation, PRN 105926. (shown in green on the map below)

Following the closure of RAF Aberporth airfield (PRN 30594) in May 1946 a Polish Army Resettlement Camp was established within the former airfield accommodation and facilities. An Officers' Reserve Corps and a Railway Battalion were posted to Aberporth. Local residents were recruited to teach English. The Polish servicemen supplied garrison staff for the vacated military installations within Pembrokeshire and Carmarthenshire. They remained until late 1948 when they were transferred to Shobdon in Herefordshire.

The OS 1953 map clearly shows at least 10 huts and a couple of smaller structures in the field to the south of the airfield.

When visited in 2013 the site has been returned to agricultural use and the only remaining trace is a concrete roadway at the gate entrance. A Pyper 2013.

Having assessed the application, the proposals for land-spreading of waste should not have a detrimental impact on these features, which do not exhibit above-ground remains. However there may still be archaeological deposits surviving below ground, so intrusive activities below the level of previous cultivation should be avoided and we would recommend that these locations are not suitable for nurse tanks.

There is always the possibility for previously unknown remains to survive within this area of which we have no knowledge. Should further archaeological features or finds be identified it is important that Dyfed Archaeological Trust Heritage Management is informed and further information and advice can then be provided as required.
