Thank you for your consultation. I have checked the map boundaries against the regional Historic Environment Record (HER) and other sources and note the following historic environment features recorded within the consultation area;

Primary Reference Number (PRN) : 52059

Trust : Dyfed

Community : Cardigan

Unitary authority : Ceredigion

NGR : SN20844862

Site Type (preferred type first) : Iron Age Defended Enclosure / Roman Enclosure

Summary :

Brongwyn-mawr enclosure is located across a low hillock composed of glacial sands and gravels. It is a cropmark site. There are no earthworks or other surface evidence for the site. On aerial photographs it shows as a strongly rectilinear enclosure defined by cropmark ditches in a barley crop. The enclosure measures approximately 60m square. An entrance lies on the southeast side. Here a second ditch is visible parallel and approximately 10m from the main enclosure ditch. Several cropmark splodges within the enclosure may mark the site of pits or large post-holes. In 2005 the site was under barley. The emerging cropmark and some of the pits could be seen during July of that year on the ground. Further cropmarks to the southwest may be part of this site. K Murphy 1 July 2005

Trust : Dyfed

Community : Cardigan

Unitary authority : Ceredigion

NGR : SN21014859

Site Type (preferred type first) : Well

Summary :

A well is recorded on the 1st edition Ordnance Survey map.

Having assessed the application, the proposals for land-spreading of waste should not have a detrimental impact on these features, which do not exhibit above-ground remains. However there may still be archaeological deposits surviving below ground, so ground intrusive activities in these areas should be avoided.

There is always the possibility for previously unknown remains to survive within this area of which we have no knowledge. Should further archaeological features or finds be identified it is important that Dyfed Archaeological Trust Heritage Management is informed and further information and advice can then be provided as required.
