Advice (If the proposal is considered to be inappropriate at this location please provide an explanation)	PRN 3616 Castell Coch;newhouse Mediveal; Post-medieva; Domestic; defence; monument Castell Coch is a fine example of a semi-fortified but unvaulted first floor Hall-house of the 14th century that lies within a 'moated enclosure'. It was the centre of the Manor of Newhouse. The enclosure bank received at least one corner drum tower by c. 1500. A late medieval fishpond lies to the east. First floor windows were added to the Hall-house during the 16th century, and in the 17th century a 3-storeyed house was formed within the building. The site may have been abandoned by 1670. The house though ruined is in fair condition but the entire site is thickly overgrown and parts are wooded. The 1997 Survey commissioned by Pembrokeshire County Council is intended to form the basis for improving access to the site. HJ after Ludlow 1997, April 2000. This feature is a listed Scheduled monument PE053. As the consultation affects both the setting and a section of the Scheduled Monument PE053 this application will need to be consulted with Cadw PRN 13311 Newton Medieval Hollow way

	A good hollow way running roughly westward from Newhouse towards Newton Church. Very plough damaged in next two fields. Possibly the old road to the church.(TAJ 12/4/88).          The hollow way may preserve evidence of buried archaeological remains. In order to protect any buried archaeological remains, and protect any surviving earthworks, it is recommended that no ground intrusive activities should be undertaken within 5 metres of the edge of the site. Ideally the site should not be ploughed. This is a potentially archaeologically sensitive area; the proximity of the Medieval fortified house of Castell Coch and archaeological work in advance of development at Bluestone has indicated the potential for buried archaeological features in this area, more information on the extent and scope of planting is therefore requested.
Further Assessment Required?	Yes – please consult with Cadw, and please provide further information regarding the extent of the planting areas.
